Loudoun Impact Fund and Creighton Gives Collaboration Awards $246,000 to Loudoun Nonprofits

2025 Loudoun Impact Fund and Creighton Gives donors

Leesburg, VA – December 16, 2025 – The Community Foundation for Loudoun and Northern Fauquier Counties and the Community Foundation for Northern Virginia announce that the Loudoun Impact Fund and Creighton Gives have awarded $246,000 in grants to 29 nonprofit organizations providing services to Loudoun residents in need.

The Loudoun Impact Fund is a giving circle of individuals and businesses interested in local grantmaking, administered jointly by the Community Foundation for Northern Virginia and the Community Foundation for Loudoun and Northern Fauquier Counties. Grants from the Loudoun Impact Fund support programs that empower youth, older adults, and people with disabilities to thrive and contribute to the Loudoun County community. Since 2014, the Loudoun Impact Fund has granted more than $1.1 million to the Loudoun community. Participants contribute $1,000 per individual or $5,000 per business to join the giving circle. Donors review proposals submitted by local nonprofits through a competitive application process and recommend grants to support Loudoun residents.

Creighton Gives, another giving circle managed by the Community Foundation for Northern Virginia for the Creighton Farms community, encourages charitable contributions from Creighton Farms members through an annual giving and grantmaking cycle. Southworth

Clubs, the managing company for Creighton Farms Club, offers to match contributions to the Creighton Gives fund from Creighton Farms members up to $100,000 annually.

In 2025, Creighton Gives partnered with the Loudoun Impact Fund, with donors from both funds pooling their contributions to expand available grant dollars. This partnership created a combined grant pool of $246,000 to support nonprofits applying to the Loudoun Impact Fund, with contributions from approximately 70 individual and corporate donors. The collaboration more than doubled the amount of grant funds available through the Loudoun Impact Fund compared to last year and increased the number of nonprofits receiving grants from 18 in 2024 to 29 in 2025.

This year's grantees were celebrated by the funds' donors at a reception held in December by Zwiesel Fortessa in Ashburn.

"Our Creighton Farms members surpassed my highest expectations with their charitable giving in 2025," said Patrick Casey, general manager of Creighton Farms. "Creighton Gives partnering with the Loudoun Impact Fund helped us focus our philanthropy where it can reach the greatest number of Loudoun residents. Southworth Clubs is equally dedicated to supporting the communities we serve and is pleased to match our members' generosity through our annual contribution."

This year's corporate and foundation donors to the Loudoun Impact Fund and Creighton Gives, contributing at least $5,000, include Backflow Technology, LLC; Zwiesel Fortessa; Lark Brewing Company; MAI Capital Management; Tony Nerantzis and Associates of Raymond James; Howard Hughes Medical Institute, Janelia Research Campus; Three Mustard Seeds; and the Hunt Family Fund.

At least $25,000 in additional private donations, above and beyond this year's grant pool, have also been committed by individual members of the giving circle to support additional nonprofit needs identified in grant proposals submitted by nonprofits.
